Study Tour “Inclusion in UK”

---

From 4-9 March 2013 the British Council organised a study tour to the UK with the core topic of ‘inclusion’. The tour was specifically designed for the teachers and policy makers from Saxony-Anhalt who participated. One of the authors of the Index of Inclusion [<http://www.eenet.org.uk/resources/docs/Index%20English.pdf>], Tony Booth, contributed highly in the development of the programme. The delegation visited schools in Cambridge and Norfolk, attended revealing workshops and was encouraged with insightful presentations. The objectives of the tour have been, besides raising awareness, providing the participants with the tools needed to ensure inclusive teaching and promoting best practice examples of schools and institutions whose work is already based on the Index of Inclusion.

Comments from participants:

“I am going to integrate the “index” into my planning!”

“I have still been thinking of England so positively. The idea of ‘inclusion’ has been following me since then!”

“I am still so grateful for having had the opportunity to attend this Study Tour! Everything worked out so well! Thank you so much! ”

“I am still indefinitely touched how much you cared for us!”

“Perfect planning! You have accompanied us so competently and always cheerfully.”
